DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The John Montgomery Preston House is a brick, two-story structure with gable roof and twin interior end chimneys at both ends. The central entrance to the five-bay facade has a porch with an unsheltered second level and access from the second story. These two closely matched doorways have a transom and sidelights, framed and divided by slender Tuscan columns with an entablature and Greek Revival block composition above. Accenting the entire facade are the plaster rectangular insets between stories and the fine Doric entablature complete with triglyphs, metapes and mutules. Each window in the first floor has nine-over-nine sash with six-over-nine sash on the second floor. The front facade brickwork is a veneer with no visible bond while the sides and rear are built with American bond. The two-story brick rear ell appears to be contemporary with the main block but is smaller in proportion. This rear section was recently connected to the main house.

The four rooms in the main block surround a central hall with a simple, single-landing stair. First floor mantels consist of two columns on either side of the opening supporting a plain entablature above. Door and window framings use the standard Greek Revival corner block-and-fluting moldings.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (Include Personages, Dates, Events, Etc.)

The John Montgomery Preston House represents the transition from the Federalist to the Greek Revival style, a change that occurred in western Virginia as late as the 1840's and 50's. This 1842 structure takes advantage of the features of both styles in a form which is more impressive because of its size than most structures of any period in this area. Its beautiful location on the Middle Fork of the Holston River in the hills west of Marion has been marred by the presence of Interstate 81 a few hundred feet to the north.

The house was built in 1842 by John Montgomery Preston on land his wife, Maria Thornton Carter Preston (died 1842) inherited from her father, General Francis Preston (1765-1836). The property had come into the possession of this branch of the Preston family through the marriage of General Preston to Sarah Buchanan Campbell, the daughter of General William Campbell (1745-1781), Revolutionary War soldier and hero of the Battle of King's Mountain. General Campbell had inherited the property from his father Charles Campbell.

For some years prior to the building of the present house a log tavern had stood on the site. This hostelry had quite a dubious reputation in the area as the innkeeper was believed to take advantage of the unwary, even going to the extreme of robbing and murdering the unprotected. This tradition was perhaps substantiated in the 1890's when twenty-one bodies were discovered in a cave on the property.

Partially to rid the area of this notorious inn and more probably to erect a finer establishment, John Montgomery Preston built the present house in 1842 "as a tavern or stagecoach inn along the Wilderness Road." This inn served travellers for some twenty-two years until 1864 when John Montgomery Preston, Junior, brought his bride, Mary Preston Lewis Cochran of Albemarle County, to the property and converted the inn into a private residence. Preston served as a captain in Company B, Fourtieth Virginia Infantry. His home was sacked and made the headquarters of General Stoneman's federal troops during their raid towards Saltville and Abingdon in 1864.

The house is not only important architecturally but also as the seat of one of the branches of the Preston family which played such an important role in the history of the whole southwestern part of Virginia. The well-known Preston Collection of eighteenth and nineteenth century manuscripts, the bulk of which are now in the Library of Congress or in the Draper Collection of the Wisconsin Historical Society, was once housed in the Preston House.
